The European Mission Network (EMiN), which is being set up by the EU-funded project TRAMI (Transnational Cooperation on the Missions Approach), aims to become the recognized Community of Practice to support key actors in the successful implementation and delivery of the EU Missions at national and regional level – to Make Missions Work. EMiN meetings offer the opportunity for exchange with experts from all over Europe and to help shape the agenda of the emerging EMiN Community.

After the kick-off meeting of the EMiN in October, where the expectations towards the network, the contribution to the Community of Practice and upcoming topics were discussed, a second EMiN meeting is being held: Making missions work - How to involve regions in the mission implementation process?

Following up the discussions during the kick-off, a closer look will be taken on multilevel, regional examples and approaches towards the implementation of missions.

The meeting will be open to any interested participants.
